A Good Letter.

Someone has advanced the opinion that the letter "e" is the most unfortunate letter in the English alphabet, because it is always out of cash, forever in debt, never out of danger and in hell all the time. For some reason, he overlooked the fortunes of the letter, as we call his attention to the fact "e" is never in war and always in peace. It is the beginning of existence, the commencement of ease and the end of trouble. Without it there would be no meat, no life and no heaven. It is the center of honesty, makes love perfect and without it there would be no editors, devils or news.—Exchange.

Story of a Proud Cat.
One day there lived a very proud cat, whose name was Kitty. She had soft, black and glossy fur, with a blue ribbon round her neck. The house in which she lived was a big, beautiful building. Opposite her lived a poor dog named Toby, who, being unused to the luxuries of Kitty, did not know what it was to be proud. At this time there was a certain law between dogs and cats. This law was that when you are pleased you must wag your tail, but when you are angry you must keep it stiff. Kitty, thinking that she was so rich it was unfair to make her do even one thing the same as such a poor creature as Toby, broke this law and did just the opposite. She was, of course, punished, and since then cats wag their tails when they are angry instead of when they are pleased.

Knickerbocker Modes.

Just when the weather bureau furnishes its most formidable supply of weather, giving us alternate doses of slash and ice, the shops blossom out in sales of dainty lingerie and advance showings of summer modes and fabrics, that make one for the time, oblivious of outside temperatures, until at the door one snuggles into warm wraps and furs and comes back to January realities.

Philippine Embroideries.

Lingerie hand-embroidered and hand-made from the Philippines is an enticing novelty of the season.

The nainsooks, mulls, wash crepes and washable satins are sent to the islands, where all the dainty stitchery is wrought, and patterns embroidered, derived from bridal chests of Spanish senoritas generations ago. Exquisite creations in "Intimate Wear" that reflect the romance and mystery of old Spain, yet marked at figures that bring them within reach of a modest allowance. Considerable use is made of wide washable ribbons, run through embroidered slashes and sheer hems of net or Georgette crepe that trim the washable satin and crepe-de-chine garments that are at once luxurious and practical. Smocking is another favorite embellishment, and gowns of tinted mull smocked in white are especially pretty.

Sport Skirts

are boot top length and make great use of pockets, buttoned flaps and belt girdles. Patent leather belts slipped through eyelets that appear to hold the shirings at the waist are a fetching feature. Deep slashed pockets lined with white, rose, maize or green, are smart and novel. Patch pockets slit down the centre forming little reverses caught with buttons are new and pretty, and huge bag like pockets with overlapping flaps trim the hips of other models.

Materials.

The materials are fine cotton gabardines, golf cords, corduroy washable flannels, and two toned velvets, Belgian linens of heavy texture and Bedford cord cottons. While white is most used, colored skirts are excellently endorsed, varying from modest beiges and tans to the most vivid corals and emerald green. Sport coats contrast or match one color of the striped skirt which is much in evidence at Palm Beach, and other resorts, and silk jerseys are as much worn as last season though the tailored jacket is a bit smarter just now and velveteen makes a great many sport coats.

New Blouses.

Whether a woman goes South or stays at home, she is always interested in the showing of new blouses, and spite of the perils of the seas buyers from the prominent shops are constantly crossing to Paris in search of novelties in these garments. For wear with sport skirts shirts are plain and beautifully cut and tailored, with little embroidery except for the fancy scalloped edgings of the front and collar and flaring cuff that is featured in a few models.

Dress Blouses.

Georgette crepe by itself, or combined with Pussy Willow and other wash silks, is perhaps first favorite in materials for more pretentious waists, but taffeta and crepe-de-chine are close followers in fashionable favor. Collars vary from very high chin enveloping styles to wide turn back models that have quite cape-like proportions, and large reverses of fichu style are a notable development at once becoming and smart.

January Chances.

The shops are all offering wonderful chances for profitable investment of Christmas money, in garments for immediate wear as well as in advance warm weather types. Furs are reduced to figures that seem especially attractive when all the coldest weather is yet to come. Smart full length coats of seal, dyed muskrat trimmed with skunk and other pelts, and of caracul similarly combined are in many cases priced at a third less than at the beginning of the season I was told at C. C. Shayne and Company, and the demand for foxes, in cross and black, blue and white, or red skins shows no signs of waning.

Beaver continues in excellent vogue, and is one of the most durable of furs.

Little Girl's Goss.

Little Girl's mother was reading the paper and came to a personal referring to the departure of a young man for a polytechnic school. "Wonder what polytechnic means?" she said. "Look in the dictionary, Little Girl, and see." But Little Girl was busy with a new doll's wardrobe, so she chose to guess. "Maybe it's a school where they train parrots, mamma." —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Gettysburg.

Our revival meeting has been in progress for a week with a good attendance and interest. Last night Rev. L. E. Carr delivered a very appropriate sermon for the occasion in our M. E. pulpit. The audience was very large and it is hoped, after being heard by so many, that some good results will follow.

On last Friday the Franklin township high school and our school gave a contest in our school auditorium in the way of some sort of a program and a debate, the question of which was "Preparedness." The Franklin township school had the negative side of the question and won out by a small majority on points, but while that school won out on that question our school won out upon the whole with a very small margin.

This goes to show that both schools were pretty equally matched. Ye Scribe was not present to hear the exercises, but it is said the smallest member on the negative side, and for that matter, the smallest by odds taking part, delivered a most creditable argument. This only shows what small fellows can do when they have a mind to. Our boys will have to come into the ring with a larger preparedness for responsibility assumed. This will only act as a spur to our boys to rise to better effort. It is said that all acquitted themselves in a creditable manner, except some very small boys, (large enough to know and do better) who annoyed the audience by throwing beans. Come now, boys, you should do better, and on all public occasions deport yourselves in a proper way, but if you cannot do better, then we suggest that you go in the company of your mothers and be seated with them, who will see to it that such breaks will not occur. If the woodshed and birch flourished today, as in days past, such conduct would not be witnessed in public. I suppose those boys are too small to know they are casting reflections upon their parents and teachers. If they are not and that further outbreaks of the kind will not occur, I am not sure that the passage from the woodshed and birch to the Juvenile court has been a wise movement. If the former yet prevailed the parent would correct the trouble, but under the latter the public administers the castigation. Boys ought to have brain enough to control and direct their own conduct and if they did, much annoyance would be saved to the public and much chagrin to the parents concerned. I hope there will be no further occasion to allude to like occurrences.

Attendance at our M. E. Sunday school was over one hundred yesterday.

Our undertaker buried two aged ladies of our vicinity last week. They were Mother Brown, aged 87 years, consort of the late Philip Brown, and Mother Miller, aged 88 years, consort of the late Joseph G. Miller, who served many years as Justice of the Peace of Van Buren township. Jan. 10. KOB

African Colonies.
The African possessions and protectorates of the European powers now at war are more than three times as large as continental United States. They are more than three times as large as all of Europe now plunged in war and are eleven times larger than England, France, Germany and Belgium, which control them. The largest individual holder of African territory is France, with 3,812,000 square miles, more than 1,500,000 of which are the Sahara desert. England controls 3,618,245 square miles; Belgium, with Belgian Congo as its sole possession, 902,000 square miles and Germany 1,035,086 square miles.—Argonaut.
